END OF BLOODY OKINAWA BATTLE IS BELIEVED AT HAND; "JAP" DEFENSES IN SOUTHERNMOST TIP ARE CRUMBLING

Resistance of Enemy Ends After Marines' Gain of 3,000 Yards

ENEMY SPLIT IN TWO Flame-Throwing and Artillery-Bearing Tanks Blast Enemy

By Gerard R. Himmelbach (U. S. Pacific Cable Editor)

The end of the bloody Okinawa battle appeared at hand today.

Shortly after Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that Japanese defenses on the southernmost tip of the island were "collapsing," front-line dispatches indicated that the enemy was unable to offer further resistance.

International News Service War correspondent George McWilliams, in a dispatch from Okinawa, said that "Japanese organized resistance virtually ended after U. S. Marines pushed forward some 3,000 yards in a single day to split the last enemy defenses into two separate pockets."

Elements of two marine outfits pushed through the heart of the Japanese remnants, reaching the southern shore of the island and cutting the Japs into two isolated groups. One of these segments was about 9,000 square yards in area, while the other was but 5,000 square yards.

Into these enemy-held pockets, landed warships of the U. S. Pacific fleet poured a hell-fire of shells, adding to the devastation inflicted by the Japs, plane-throwing and artillery-bearing tanks lashed the enemy. So also did large concentrations of land-based artillery. In desperation, the doomed Japs in many instances hurled themselves to their death in the sea, or jumped from the towering cliffs at the island's southern end, sending their bodies onto the rocks below.

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Seven families in the apartment owned by Marcus Kline, at Sellersville, on Monday were routed from their beds and driven to the street, when fire in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Loux was discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Loux and child were not at home at the time the fire was discovered. They had been spending the evening with Mrs. Loux's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Magargle, Perkasie.

The man discovering the blaze saw smoke pouring from the third floor, where Mr. and Mrs. Loux and child have an apartment.

Firemen were called, and in the meanwhile occupants of the other apartments, none of which were threatened, were aroused.

The contest was open to members of Future Farmers of America chapters throughout the state, and second prize went to Gene Love, of West Fallowfield Township high school, Cochransville, Chester county.

John Cross, Slippery Rock high school, placed fourth, and Eugene Gonsman, Hollidaysburg high school, placed fifth.

Mrs. Freda Lawrence was slightly bruised when the car crashed into the tree on the Grafty property. An officer of the Doylestown state police sub-station investigated.

Bucks County Herd Classified for Type

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., June 20—Milton C. Satterthwaite, Woodside, has recently had his herd inspected and classified for type. The Holstein-Friesian Association of America announces today. The inspection was conducted by T. E. Elder, Alton, N. H., one of the eight officials appointed by the Association to do this work in the United States.

Among the animals classified in the Satterthwaite herd, 4 were designated "very good"—the second highest score an animal can receive; and 5 were designated "good plus."

This is the 2nd time the Satterthwaite herd has been classified for type.

The type classification, combined with a production testing program, is used as a means of proving sires and locating outstanding blood cow families in an owner's herd.

QUIETLY SHE SHARES HIS TRIUMPH

IN THE STREETS OF MANHATTAN, millions of New Yorkers were according the greatest ovation in the city's history to the nation's greatest hero, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. In Abilene, Kansas, the General's mother, Mrs. Ida Eisenhower, was busy with her knitting, listening to the radio. Over the air came one thunderous cheer after another, hour after hour. The mother heard her son's voice as he made his brief speeches—and went on knitting, calmly. In her heart was great joy, for soon he would be home. A photographer came and took her picture, and here is the portrait he made of a great hero's mother. Perhaps it will help to explain many of the lovable qualities of General Ike. STATE SURPLUS

Pennsylvania Republicans have every reason to be proud of the excellent financial position which is shown by the recent reports from the office of Governor Martin.

According to the compilations of Dr. Edward B. Logan, Budget Secretary, there is now a surplus of $160,748,000—much the largest surplus in the state's history.

This is not the only Republican bonus for taxpayers in the State.

Reductions in general taxes total $70,500,000 a biennium, reduction in unemployment compensation payrolls taxes will amount to $150,000,000 by the end of the year, and reductions in motor license fees are upwards of $5,000,000 a year.

This has been accomplished with no impairment to state services.

As a matter of fact, current state expenditures, while much less than under the Little New Deal in several fields, are only slightly less in the aggregate because other state services have been broadened.

The regular budget, without the postwar program, is $388,734,000 compared with $416,078,000 in the second biennium of the Earle administration.

The tremendous economies in most functions can be shown by recalling that one item alone, that of education subsidies—the bulk of it for teachers' salaries—has increased from $86,500,000 under the Democrats to $162,000,000 for the coming two years.

If this item is omitted, all other regular costs of state government were $329,500,000 for the last two years of the Democratic regime, and $226,000,000 now.

The present surplus consists of $109,498,000 in the General Fund and $57,250,000 in the Motor License Fund.

As to its disposal, $48,870,000 is being used to pay off the high-interest General State Authority bonds, and $76,235,000 is being applied to postwar projects. A great deal of highway construction is planned as soon as conditions permit, accounting for the rest.

This financial outlook is vastly different than when the Republican Party returned to Harrisburg in 1939 after four years of the Little New Deal.

At that time the state had been plunged heavily in debt, it had taken over a long series of new charges with no attempt to provide for them, and it was in the midst of a spending spree on borrowed money.

The Democratic legacy of debt totalled about $72,500,000. In addition, the first General State Authority program, almost entirely on borrowed money, was underway and other such programs were partly committed.

Rapid and repeated increases in taxes had quite failed to keep up with the still more rapid invention of new ways to spend money.

In approximately six years of Republican administration, the state's books have been put in balance, the inherited debts wiped out, taxes reduced, and a large and healthy surplus is on hand, available for postwar planning.

This is a record which should lend emphasis to the words of all Republicans who insist that the administration of Federal affairs has been wasteful and extravagant under the New Deal—that a great deal of our present staggering national debt might have been avoided by commonsense and prudence.

Exactly the same arguments have been advanced by the national New Deal for their improvidence in over- Continued on Page Four

Work of Chaplaincy Is Presented to Rotarians

ANDALUSIA, June 20—Bensalem Rotary Club had several guests at its dinner meeting in King Hall last evening, at which time the members heard an address regarding army and navy chaplaincies.

The guests included: 1st Lt. John J. Scarborough, and Pvt. John W. Wilkins, both of whom were recently liberated from German prison camps; Fred W. Sonn, of Pottstown Rotary Club; the Rev. Howard W. Adams, of Somerton; and Col. Stephen Melnick, Bensalem Rotary's honorary member. The latter addressed a few inspiring words to the Rotarians.

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. Adams, who told of the work of the chaplaincy in the armed forces. "In this war the chaplains are doing a much better job than in the last world war," he commented. "In the last war they were called 'Holy Joes' because they were really despised. The requirements to enter the chaplaincy are very high, physically and mentally. After a man is accepted he must for 10 weeks attend a chaplain's school to learn how to administer the rites of the other church groups.

"In this war where it is impossible for soldiers to get to a service, the service must be taken to them by a chaplain. The big question seems to be 'Is religion going to be revived because of the war?' Some say there are no atheists in fox holes, and others insist there are. Somewhere between these two views lies the truth, for a soldier or anyone to experience a religious rebirth must have had some background for it in his life."

The Rev. Adams was of the opinion that one very important thing that might come out of this war is the breakdown of denominational religion. If this happens it would present a united religious front against the forces of evil and be a big step toward a better world.

Next week Dr. John Robbins Hart, rector of Valley Forge Chapel, will be the speaker.

Of course, they do not correct organic menstrual conditions that require consultation with your doctor. But they do help to relieve the discomfort of functional pains, cramps, headaches and nervousness that frequently accompanies the normal menstrual period. Taken according to directions, preferably two or three days in advance of your time, Chi-Ches-Ters Pills tend to relax the muscular contraction that is often the cause of unnecessary distress. An added iron ingredient helps promote resistance and energy. Before suffering again ask your druggist for Chi-Ches-Ters Pills, and accept no substitute. Caution: Use only as directed.

Home-Run Scorers
For Winners

Despite the frequent showers of Monday evening, the Fleetwings Arrows and American Steel teams managed to play a 7-inning ball game on Wetzel field, Trenton. After it was over the Steelers had chalked up their 17th straight Trenton Industrial League triumph by a 4-3 score.

Home runs by Carmen Gagliardi and Gene Warwick gave the Steelers the win. Gagliardi put his team ahead, 3-0, in the first with a home run with two on base and after the Mulhollandmen had deadlocked the score in the sixth, Warwick came through with his four-base play.

Herman Pluma hurried for the Arrows and Fred Jones pitched for the winners. Both allowed six hits.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(INS)—S/Sgt. Sumner H. Wolf of Rever, Mass., who is now awaiting his next Air Force assignment at the AAF Redistribution Station No. 1 here, is not one to waste words. Here's how he describes what happened to the only Nazi that came within his range during 50 missions as a B-24 gunner. "He came diving at me from 9 o'clock high. I shot him down."

HARRISBURG—(INS)—The assuring announcements by cigarette manufacturers that the shortage was nearly over fostered little hope in a local grocer who displayed a sign, "No Cigarettes. No Use."

CHESTER—(INS)—Warrant Officer Earl Watkins, a veteran of eight years in the Marine Corps, was flown 10,000 miles from bloody Okinawa to his home in nearby Prospect Park to be at the bedside of his ill mother.

assessment on the United Sand and Gravel Co. upon the approval of county authorities. Several assessments in the occupational field were due to the change of house-works to work in other fields.

The reports of the various committees were also heard with action being taken by the police department on the newly-made ruling of no parking from the old railroad tracks on Washington street to the Bridge street corner. The ruling was made due to the large number of trucks and cars parking on both sides of the street, thereby creating a traffic hazard. Edwin Greenlee, chairman of the street committee, reported on the number of missing traffic signs and street signs throughout the streets of the borough, and action will be taken to have them replaced.

The finance committee reported that interest in the amount of $453.75 on the 1920 bonds has to be paid by July 1 at the Morrisville Bank, and it was agreed that the $10,000 in the water works improvement reserve fund be put into United States Treasury F and G Bonds in the Seventh War Loan drive. Both fire companies were granted $275 each from the fire tax funds, and the Capitol View Fire Company will get a two-inch water tap installed for cleaning apparatus.

Councilman John Bleasdale announced that plans for the sewage system survey were about finished. The sanitation chairman also stated that in accordance with borough plans to establish, if possible, its own garbage collection next year, the price of an incinerator was being looked into, with the committee to make a full report at the earliest possible date.

Secretary William Howell advised council that the Department of Forest and Water agreed to pay for the damage done to the water main located in the canal at the Union street bridge.

were injured annually on farms. Nearly 10 per cent of the injuries resulted in death, they added.

"According to the report most of the casualties resulted from overturned wagons and careless management of machinery," it was stated. "A large number of the accidents occurred during the harvesting season when farm vehicles are most in use."

Careless handling of animals was the second greatest cause of field accidents, the report stated. Falling objects and misuse of hand tools took the next largest toll, it was reported.

Two-fifths of the mishaps were said to have originated in the home where badly lighted stairways were responsible for "an unnecessary number of falls," the report continued. Burns and gas poisoning accounted for other casualties.

Paralleling the safety drive, the Pennsylvania Council of Farm Organizations has named a committee to institute a safety education program at the Pennsylvania State College, department officials said. A specialist was slated to be selected to supervise the work.

A variation in the seasonal breeding of cows to assure year-round milk production was suggested by the Pennsylvania State College as a solution to one of the normal peace time farm problems. Dr. Kenneth Hood, extension economist, pointed out that by breeding a larger percentage of herds for fall freshening the flow of milk could be kept nearer a level with consumer demands. He recommended "managed milking" and artificial breeding as well as periodical culling of herds.

"Reduce the costs of producing milk by increasing production per cow by feeding high quality roughage," he stated.

Hood urged support of farm marketing co-operatives in order to obtain the best marketing service and prices. Some co-operatives have milk as far as retail delivery, in addition to making fat analyses and bacteria count, he explained.

It is up to the producer, however, to improve the quality of milk in order to meet the demands of discriminating consumers, and to compete successfully with substitute products, Hood declared.

Three short courses in dairy, poultry and fruit growing have been scheduled by Penn State to open July.

A two week's course on dairy herd improvement will begin July 4 while instruction in testing dairy products will be offered July 19-21. Classes on fruit growing will be conducted for five days beginning July 23.
